The Mainz Research School of Translational Biomedicine (TRANSMED) offers the Jumpstart Program for young medical graduates. The program aims at generating the preliminary data and skills required to apply for external early career support. Therefore, the program provides financial support for young academics to focus entirely on research without clinical obligations for a limited period of time. The program is funded by the Else Kröner Fresenius Foundation for research in the areas of immune-mediated diseases and immunotherapy.

TRANSMED offers positions for a

TRANSMED Jumpstart Short-term Fellowship (TV-Ärzte UM Mainz, Ä1, 100%).

The short-term grants aim at supporting young academics who have done some preliminary work but cannot find time to conclude the research project they have already started, to write publications from previous projects or to write a formal third-party grant application. Grants will consist of six months of protected research time without clinical obligations.

The fellowship is available for 6 months and can be started on October 1, 2020. 4 months will be covered by the TRANSMED Jumpstart Program; additional 2 months have to be provided by the affiliated clinical department.

We expect:

- An excellent German state examination and an outstanding MD degree
- A strong commitment to a career in research and medicine
- An integrative and cooperative personality
- A very good command of written and spoken English

We offer:

- An individualized structured curriculum combining clinical training and research experience
- Courses in state-of-the-art research technologies and in transferable skills
- A comprehensive mentoring program with supervision by a team of advisors

TRANSMED is committed to equal opportunity and the compatibility of family and career. They therefore explicitly encourage applications from women.
